time to time to disturb such harmony was the arrogance of the University of Virginia men, who persist in speaking of their school as "The University." Some one remarked, sotto voce "we still do, Judge." Fortunately this remark was not heard.

Following the remarks of Judge McLeary, Governor Hunt related some interesting incidents of his college days nt "Old Ell," where he was a class-mate of Gen. Taft.

After the banquet and the departure of the "guests of honor," preliminary steps in the formation of the Association were taken, as already stated Messrs Hoard and Berkeley being authorized to draw up a constitution and bylaws for the final organization.

It was originally intended to celebrate Defferson's Birthday in a becoming manner but, on reflecting that this would follow so closely the meeting just described, it was thought best not to attempt to carry out the plans originally proposed. An informal meeting was held however, on April 13th, at which Dr. Pickerell made a short address on Jefferson and later a health was drunk to his memory and to the continued and increasing prosperity of "his child," the University of Virginia. At this meeting we had the pleasure of having with us, Mr. Fernando Domenech, a recent law student in the University, Mr. Jose A. Poventud, who has very recently returned to Puerto Rico after graduating in will open a season of stock at the Academy to-morrow night. The first bill presented will be "Jim the Penman." This play has long been known to theatre goers as one of the strongest and most interesting ever staged. The character work necessary to present the play requires a cast of unusual talent, and in this the Bennett-Moulton Company is well equipped. Miss Leigh DeLacy, who has endeared herself to the Norfolk theatre goers by her clever work during the last six weeks, as well as by her personal charm, will play the leading feminine role in the play, that of Mrs. James Raleston. The play has to deal with the life of a man who is supposed to be very wealthy. He is in the best of society, or in other words, is considered one of the "four hundred." As he has the money no one seems to care what his business is or where the money comes from. But when his wife discovers that her husband belongs to a syndicate of forgers, that climax gives Miss DeLacy & great opportunity for emotional acting.

"John Reed."
The usual matinees will be given Tues day. Thursday and Saturday, with the regular performances each evening.

Raymond Hitchcock has made this season the very important step from popularity to fame. His impersonation of Consul Booze, in The Yankee Consul, at the Broadway Theatre, is one of the marked personal successes of the season and has made him a musical comedy star of the first order. For eight years Mr. Hitchcock has been under the management of Henry W. Savage, and to the credit of both men it may be said that neither desires a change The other day a reporter asked Mr. Hitchcock about his ambitions for the future. "My box," said the lean comedian solemily, "the deepest desire of my ambitious heart is that on my tomb may be graven the words: 'Here lies the body of Raymond Hitchcock, by the kind permission of Henry W. Savage."

Jean Richepin has provided Otis Skinner with a new play. Le Chemineau (in French.) The Harvester is its English title. It is said by those who should know to preserve the lyric quality is in the Valley of the Saguenay, French Canada, in the year 1850. The Harvester is a dramatle idyl of life and love among the humbler types of the soil. The stage pictures are all framed amid the golden glories of harvest fields, and love is treated with the originality, passionate power and fascination that have given popularity to the poems and plays of Richepin. Mr. Skinner is surrounded by a company of well-known players. ner with a new play. Le Chemineau daughter of the late Horace Greeley. Mr. Greeley employed Daniel Frohman in his office when the latter was a youth, and now Mr. Frohman, with a fine sense of appreciation for a past favor, does something for a Greeley.

Manager Fred Niblo, who will direct the tour of Josephine Cohan, in the new American comedy, "The Leading Lady," has decided upon this style of play for her, as musical comedy has given her so little opportunity for the display of her talents as a comedienne. Her new play is by Lesile Corbin, a New York Journalist, and will require a strong cast, though small in numbers, and will introduce Misa Cohan in several of her dainty dances.

pany of 75 people and promises a four months run at the New York Theatre, lasting the months of October, Novem-ber, December and January, in his new musical comedy, "Little Johnnie Jones." Charles C. Stumm will direct the tour.

With the closing of the season of Bertha Galland in "Dorothy Vernon, of Haddon Hall," at the Grand Opera-House, New York, May 7th, the field for Julia Marlowe in Charles Major's other dramatized historical novel, will be clear. Miss Galland has played in New York, her fourth visit this season.
